Gender Pay Gap Report 2023

Introduction

Epping Forest District Council is required to publish an annual Gender Pay Gap report in accordance with The Equality Act 2010 (Gender Pay Gap Information) Regulations 2017. The information contained within this report is for the snapshot date of 31 March 2023.

EFDC Gender Pay Gap Data

- The mean gender pay gap is 7.15%
- The median gender pay gap is 0%
- The proportion of Males and Females who received bonus payments is 0.28%
- The mean gender pay gap in bonus pay is 0%*
- The median gender pay gap in bonus pay is 0%*

The percentage of male and female split into quartile figures are as follows:

The figures set out above have been calculated using the standard methodologies used in the Equality Act 2010 (Gender Pay Gap Information) Regulations 2017 using data from the Council's HR and Payroll system. Please note that the figures have been rounded up or down to the nearest whole number.

*A performance related bonus payment of £5000 was paid to the Chief Executive in 2023. No bonus payments were made to other employees and therefore it's not possible to calculate a mean or median bonus gender pay gap.

What are the reasons for Epping Forest District Council's Gender Pay Gap?

Under the law, men and women must receive equal pay for:

- The same or broadly similar work
- Work rated as equivalent under a job evaluation scheme; or
- Work of equal value.

Epping Forest District Council is committed to the principle of equal opportunities and equal treatment for all employees, regardless of sex, race, religion or belief, age, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy/maternity, sexual orientation, gender reassignment or disability. It has a clear policy of paying employees equally for the same or equivalent work, regardless of their sex (or any other characteristic as set out above). As such, it:

- Publishes an annual pay statement which is discussed by full Council.
- Evaluates job roles and pay grades as necessary to ensure a fair structure.

Epping Forest District Council is therefore confident that its gender pay gap does not stem from paying men and women differently for the same or equivalent work. Rather, its gender pay gap is the result of the roles in which men and women work within the organisation and the salaries that these roles are evaluated at.

Across the whole economy, men are more likely than women to be in senior roles (especially very senior roles at the top of organisation), while women are more likely than men to be in front-line roles at the lower end of the organisation. In addition, men are more likely to be in qualified technical and IT related roles, which attract higher rates of pay than other roles at similar levels for seniority. Women are also more likely than men to have had breaks from work that have affected their career progression, for example to bring up children. They are also more likely to work part time, and many of the jobs that are available across the UK on a part-time basis are relatively low paid.

This pattern from the UK economy as a whole is reflected in the make-up of Epping Forest District Council's workforce, where the majority of its lower graded posts are held by women. However, we are continuing to see more females apply and be appointed to senior roles within the organisation.

This can be seen above in the table depicting pay quartiles by gender. This shows Epping Forest District Council's workforce divided into four equal-sized groups based on hourly pay rates. For there to be no gender pay gap, there would need to be an equal ratio of men and women in each Band.

Similar to previous reports, there remains more women than men in the lower pay bands, however females dominate the middle pay bands and there is an even split in the upper pay band.

We expect variances in our pay gap year on year and 2023 is no different. Our mean pay gap this year has decreased to 7.15%.

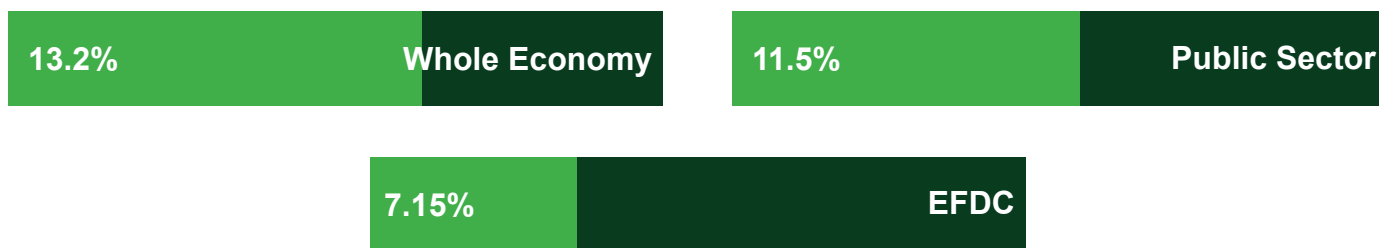

Pleasingly, our median gender pay gap has disappeared entirely and both male and female median pay rates are the same.

How does Epping Forest District Council's pay gap compare with that of other organisations?

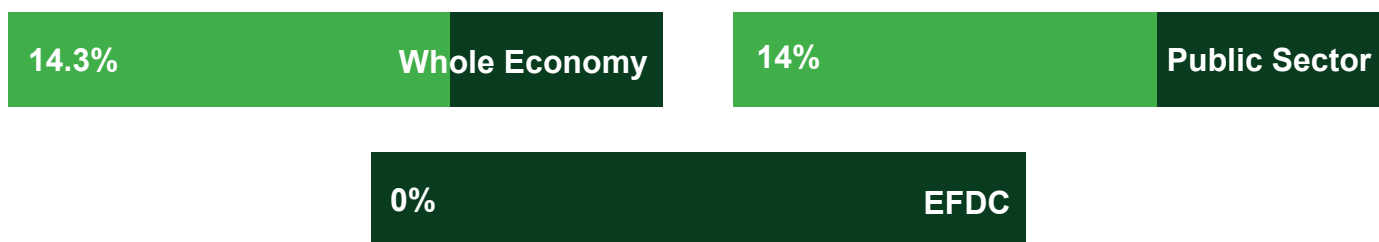

The vast majority of organisations have a gender pay gap and we are pleased to be able to say that Epping Forest District Council's gap compares favourably with that of other organisations, including those within the public sector.

The figures below are based on data from Annual Survey of Hours and Earning (AHSE) conducted by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) in November 2023.

What is Epping Forest District Council doing to address its gender pay gap?

Since Gender Pay Gap reporting began, EFDC have undertaken a number of initiatives to reduce its pay gap, most notably:

- Provision of the Springboard training programme for its female staff members to encourage employees to challenge themselves, to think differently about their life and career goals. This programme is designed to help women assess themselves and their current situation, set goals and then develop the practical skills and self-confidence needed to achieve those goals.

The main benefits reported within Epping Forest District Council were: increased confidence, improved working relationships, delegates feeling more motivated and optimistic, increased enthusiasm and willingness to take on additional tasks and feeling calmer and healthier through addressing work life balance issues.

- Hybrid working is our new normal and employees are encouraged to develop working patterns which support their work life balance e.g. flexible start and finish times, a mix of home and office working, term time working etc.

- The provision of a comprehensive corporate training programme, supports all staff in updating their skills and providing personal development opportunities. The programme also supports employees to study whilst at work as well as opportunities for internal apprenticeships.

- A coaching and mentoring programme is available.

- Employee wellbeing initiatives are embedded within the culture of the organisation.

Epping Forest District Council continues to promote gender diversity in all areas of its workforce.

None of these initiatives will, of itself, remove the gender pay gap and we recognise that our scope to act is limited in some areas – it has, for example, no direct control over the subjects that individuals choose to study or the career choices that they make – however we have seen an improvement and we expect this to continue into the future.

In the meantime, Epping Forest District Council is committed to reporting on an annual basis on what it is doing to reduce the gender pay gap and the progress that it is making.

I, Joanne Budden, Service Manager for People, Culture, Wellbeing and Internal Communications, confirm that the information in this statement is accurate.
